Gödöllő

Arboretum

A short forest hike in the Gödöllő Arboretum and Landscape Protection Area for those who like active relaxation.

The garden was basically created for forestry research in the early 20th century and only opened to the public in 1989. Walking through the arboretum gives visitors the feeling of walking through several types of forest in a small area. Playgrounds, wooden bridges and rest areas add variety to the forest paths.

The Gödöllő Forest Railway is located in the Gödöllő Hills and Landscape Protection Area, 30 km south of the town of Gödöllő, 30 km from Budapest. The line starts from a meadow on a forested hillside (Csemete-rét) and passes the Gödöllő Forestry Arboretum, where a station provides pick-up and drop-off facilities, thus creating a public transport connection.
